The entry level wage for new permanent employees will be at actual company minimum applicable to the grade/category for the job.

However, this may be reduced by an agreement concluded at plant level between the employer and respective trade union(s) on condition, firstly, that the company undertakes not to resort to the use of labour brokers for those jobs and for the duration of the agreement. Secondly that the negotiated entry level wage will not be lower than the agreed sector minimum wage.

In the event that the parties fail to reach agreement, the status quo, i.e. that the entry level wage will remain at actual company minimum, will continue to apply.

3. Annual Bonus:

A thirteenth cheque (4.33 times the basic weekly rate) is agreed. Pro-rata bonuses will be paid on termination of contracts for retrenchment, ill health, retirement and death in service.

Maternity leave will be paid at 35% (thirty five percent) of the basic rate of pay for the period of 4 (four) months and at 40% (forty percent) for the 5th and 6th month. However maternity leave will not impact on the annual bonus (13th cheque). Employees will be entitled to a full bonus in the year(s) maternity leave is taken.
